

www.pga.com.au

Anemone 'Pamina'
 Anemone 'Bowles Purpel'
 Anemone 'Queen Charlotte'
 Anemone 'Little Princess'
 Anemone 'Marchenfee'

FEATURES:

- Selected for their compact habits.
- Generous floral displays in spring and again in autumn.
- Easy to grow - even in low light areas.
- Once established, hardy in most soil types.

SUGGESTED USES:

- Difficult, low light areas such as beneath trees, beneath awnings, along shaded paths etc.
- Low maintenance gardens.
- Compact varieties suitable for containers as well as garden borders.
- Great effects when mass planted or mixed with others in collection.
- Cottage or wild flower style gardens.

CULTURAL CARE

- Low water requirements once established.
- Prefers a rich but well draining soil.
- Prune by up to half during late spring. Removing spent flower stems will encourage further displays.
- Feed in spring with slow release fertiliser.
- Frost hardy once established.

Commonly known as windflowers, members of the Anemone family have been long cherished for their graceful, airy floral displays - particularly as they can flower in the shady, difficult sites. Easy to grow and hardy once established they require little attention. During extended periods of heat, foliage may recede but will re-appear with a fresh appearance as autumn approaches. Smaller varieties are suitable for container culture. Best effects in the garden are achieved when planted en masse. Ideal companions include Brunnera 'Jack Frost', Lamiums and Hellebores.

A. 'Queen Charlotte'
Height: 80cm x Spread: 80cm

A. 'Bowles Purple'
Height: 30cm
Spread: 60cm

A. 'Pamina'
Height: 45cm
Spreading clump

A. 'Marchenfee'
Height: 60cm
Spread: 60cm

A. 'Little Princess'
Height: 45cm
Spread: 60cm